

"America's hardest working folk group."

- National Public Radio

Woods Tea Company

Rousing Sea Chanties, Lively Folk Music
Spirited Bluegrass, Celtic Ballads

Woods Tea Company weaves a musical trail through rousing sea chanties, lively folk music, spirited bluegrass, and haunting Celtic ballads - all tempered with a parched New England wit.

It's folknight in the USA eternal.

Folknight, man. It never died. A couple of tune-up notes from Michael Lussen's banjo; a wry aside that makes Rusty grin. And then the sudden thrilling uproar; the throb of strings, the lusty harmonized voices; that wash of pent-up lyricism that never died in any of us, despite all; the aching defiance of sweet lost Ireland; the echoes of men at sea; the rose-petal laments for blood spilled in the Troubles ancient and ongoing. For a few hours we are on the road with them; we are up there thumping and happy with them, lusty and harmonic in the American night.

During a performance, the Woods Tea Company pulls from a cache of over a dozen instruments. The group tours extensively performing at concerts, coffee houses, festivals, pubs and colleges throughout the United States.

Performances have included:

New York's Lincoln Center

The Mayflower II (Plymouth Harbor)

The Hatch Shell Concert Series (Home of the Boston Pops)

The Tall Ship Extravaganza (Boston)

Silver Dollar City (Branson, Missouri)

The International Celtic Festival (Hunter, NY)

First Night Celebrations (Boston and Burlington, VT)

The Chautauqua Institute (Chautauqua, NY)

The Clearwater Festival, Great Hudson River Revival

"The performance was amazing!"

- Idaho Bengal

"What a great way to spend a working day!"

- The Country Gazette

For Booking Information

Woods Tea Co.

PO Box 4063

South Burlington, VT 05406

(802) 658-4246

<http://woodstea.net>